

Name: Annie Harley, Teacher,
Haydn Primary School

- Leadership of the PE curriculum
- Organisation of high profile school-wide sporting activities
- Strong links with wider curriculum

'My enthusiasm for and commitment to PE has put the subject on the map at my own school and I have witnessed first-hand the positive outcomes this has achieved. I am really excited by the opportunity of sharing my knowledge, skills and experience with others and to help them exploit to the full the present Government initiatives on the funding of PE.'

Annie has been working in Nottingham Schools for over 5 years, with wide-ranging experience across KS1 and KS2. She leads PE and Science at Haydn Primary School and has worked closely with colleagues to develop the delivery of high quality PE with strong links across the wider curriculum.

She has extensive experience of coaching leaders and class teachers in her own school and has taught PE across all year groups in primary schools in both the City and County. She has worked on high-profile community projects to break down barriers to participation in sport, especially amongst ethnic minorities and girls. She is also a qualified gym instructor, aerobics teacher, swimming and football coach.

Annie can provide tailored, specialist support for PE leaders and school leadership to deliver high quality, child-centred PE across the school; lead planned interventions; help institute monitoring systems; model and give demonstration lessons; advise on resources and equipment and help develop templates for the organisation of school-wide sporting events.

Schools are now accountable in terms of how they spend PE and Sports Funding and reference has to be made to this on their website. Annie has designed a template to enable schools to evaluate and report on the impact of their spending in terms of new OFSTED criteria. She has also recently been successful in securing a £30,000 grant to further develop sporting facilities in her own school.
