“I aim to inspire, support and encourage Newly Qualified Teachers giving them the opportunity to enrich their own practice and in turn enhance the learning opportunities for the children they teach.”

Samantha has been teaching in a Nottingham City Primary school for six years. Within this time she has developed a broad knowledge of both KS1 and KS2 evidence based best practice.

She has worked closely with colleagues both in her own school and across the city collaborating on and facilitating many projects including; securing Healthy Schools status, developing the Science curriculum and leading the school council.

This breadth of experience has given Samantha the tools needed to be able to support Newly Qualified Teachers. Tailoring support to the needs of the teacher ensuring a positive, reflective and successful process that enables them to develop their skills, best practice and their subject knowledge. This support could be provided through; observations, modelling teaching, coaching, sharing planning, resources and assessment opportunities.
