- Primary English and Curriculum Leadership
- Raising standards in Literacy.

'I believe that the ability to communicate is vital to living a holistic life and achieving a life-long love of learning. Reading and writing are the key to this. I am passionate about helping others to create learners who are inspired to explore their own interests and are enabled to do so. I continually strive to enhance my own subject knowledge and practice, and derive great satisfaction from facilitating others in achieving their own visions.'

Arran has been teaching for 6 years, working in schools in the Cambridgeshire and Nottingham areas, with experience ranging across KS1 and KS2. He leads English at Rosslyn Park Primary School, as part of a senior management team judged as 'outstanding'.

He has a broad range of experience in schools which have high numbers of EAL learners and where English is an area for improvement. Furthermore, he has led the development of shared reading across schools, supporting colleagues in developing their practice.

He has led projects on shared reading and raising the profile of reading as part of the SSIF project, working closely with KS1 and KS2. Most recently, Arran has led the implementation of the 'Alan Peat' approach across school, in order to develop a whole school, consistent approach to the teaching of writing.

Arran is able to provide support in raising the standards of reading and writing across school and in assisting school leadership in developing a whole school approach to the teaching and assessment of English.
